From the tone of the Arizona Populist one is led to believe that no party was known in the late election except the Populist party.

New mineral deposits are being discovered in Graham county every day. It will not be long until capitalists will turn their attention this way for investments.

Rev. Boyard, while addressing the Safford Improvement and Social Club last Tuesday night said: "I have traveled over Arizona a great number of times and I find that the Gila valley is far superior to any other valley in the Territory."

The Globe Silver Belt seems to be suffering from a very bad attack of the night-mare intermingled with cold sweats over the anticipated action of its "Republican gold bugs in the next congress."

An editor in an Indiana city makes a bold dash for his rights by the following: "Ten cents per line will be charged for obituary notices to all business men who do not advertise while living. Delinquent subscribers will be charged three cents per line for obituary notices. Advertisers and cash subscribers will receive as good a send-off as we are capable of writing without any charge whatever. Better send in your subscription, as cholera is abroad in the land."

The local man on the Tucson Star uses every possible chance to fume and grumble at the Graham County Athletics by calling them masqueraders "bought nine" "El Paso players" and many other outlandish titles. In an article in Wednesday's issue it tells how the Fort Grant team is strengthened by all kinds of new players, and accuses the Phenix team of wanting to sneak the championship. The Phenix team can certainly not sneak the honors from Tucson as that ancient base ball aggregation does not hold them. We think the Star man should take a tumble to himself and stop whining.

Through carelessness on the part of some one horses have been turned loose in the Court house yard at Solomonville, and allowed to peel the bark off quite a number of young cottonwoods in the court house yard which will kill most of them. This kind of business should certainly cease, as considerable labor and means have been expended each year in an endeavor to get shade trees to grow there, and now, when these trees have made an attempt to grow it seems a shame to have them destroyed by horses turned loose in the yard.

It is said that when Napoleon was asked what was his first requisite of war, he replied that money was the first, second, third and last requisite of a successful war; money is certainly the first, second, third and last requisite of peace, because no country ever enjoyed peace which conferred happiness without an abundant supply of money. Peace without money is worse than war, pestilence and famine combined, because lingering death of the masses is more distressing than sudden death by war, and because a money famine is not relieved by the return of good crops and also because medical skill can mitigate pestilence and ultimately eradicate the disease while the disease of poverty is incurable without money.—Silver Knight.

ADVERTISE IN THE GUARDIAN.

THE VALE OF ARCADIA.

When Gov. and Mrs. Hughes returned home from this valley the following appeared in the Tucson Star from the pen of Mrs. Hughes, which indicates the impression our beautiful valley makes on strangers who visit it:

"Arizona has many rich, productive and beautiful valleys, but none which can compare in richness and productiveness of soil, the pure limpid waters of its streams, salubrious climate and surrounding mountain grandeur as that of the beautiful Gila River valley, which lies at the base of the grand and majestic Graham mountain range that towers from seven to eight thousand feet above sea level and five thousand feet above the valley, and the summit of which is covered with pine, fir and other forest trees.

For a distance of more than thirty miles there is a continuous succession of farms, orchards and gardens of the most marvelous productiveness, and as the altitude of the valley is three thousand feet it is never very warm during the summer months, and the finest apples, pears, plums and peaches is one of the horticultural results.

The apples are equal to the best of the northern fruit growing belt. The productiveness of the soil may be partially realized from the fact that when the wheat and barley crop is taken off, the same ground is at once planted to corn and gives a surprising yield of yellow or white corn. Likewise two crops of potatoes are produced from the same ground, and alfalfa grows as thick and luxuriantly as wool on a bell weather's back. Hence there is not to be found in the territory to-day a more prosperous and happy people than farmers of this beautiful superb valley in Graham county, for their fields, orchards, gardens, dairy and poultry yards are prolific in their yield and they find ready and good market in the mining districts for every pound of their surplus products and they are sufficiently far removed from California and other agricultural regions that they are not troubled with competition. It is also well to note the fact that every acre of this valley has been reclaimed to agriculture by the farmers of the valley. The canals were all constructed by them. Not a dollar of foreign capital has been called in to their assistance, but they have taken the wealth necessary for the cost of constructing their canals out of the ground. They have supported the county government largely from the same source, which is the very best index to the wonderful fruitfulness of the soil. And now that a railroad runs through the center of this beautiful valley, and as the people come to learn of this modern Vale of Arcadia, there will be a large flow of homeseekers into Graham county, especially when it is known that the prices of land have not yet "run mad through the machinations of land sharps," but that some of the most desirable farms can be had at prices ranging from $20 to $40 per acre. The time is not far distant when these lands will command from $100 to $250 per acre; as there is no more beautiful or productive valley nor a healthier climate than is found in this "Vale of Arcadia."
